Guy Chet received his bachelor’s degree in history at Haifa University, Israel, and his MA and PhD in history at Yale University. Dr. Chet teaches early American history and military history at UNT. His first book (Conquering the American Wilderness: The Triumph of European Warfare in the Colonial Northeast) is a study of Anglo-American military culture. It challenges the historiographical tradition of American exceptionalism and points to trends of cultural continuity between the Old World and the New. This theme of transatlantic cultural cohesion is at the heart of his second book (The Ocean is a Wilderness: Atlantic Piracy and the Limits of State Authority, 1688-1856) on the persistence of Atlantic piracy in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Dr. Chet has also published essays on British America, American tactics, marine insurance, and the military revolution.
