

Rick Atkinson

Rick Atkinson is a writer, historian and editor at The Washington Post. Among his bestselling books is An Army at Dawn, the first volume of a projected series, The Liberation Trilogy, which won the 2003 Pulitzer Prize for History. During the 2003 invasion of Iraq, he was an embedded journalist with the 101st Airborne Division, an experience he recounted in his book, In the Company of Soldiers. His 1993 book Crusade: The Untold Story of the Persian Gulf War is considered the definitive account of Desert Storm. Rick won a Pulitzer Prize in 1982 for national reporting for a series on the West Point Class of 1966 while working at the Kansas City Times.